STAR -A powerful tool for astrological calculations, STAR is an intelligent and easy-to-use software developed to evaluate numerically the influences of the major celestial bodies on the daily, monthly and yearly scales. It can be used for astrological forecast and analysis in personal and business situations. There are numerous commercial and free astrological softwares available today. Most of them are intended to provide a direct, and sometimes erroneous, correlation of celestial positions with a person's life. Such interpretations are not only limited to the forecast and analysis of celestial influences, but also to natal, horoscopic and gematrical astrology. Jupiter is a constellation-sized planet that occupies the same region of sky as the asterism called Sagittarius. During the 2016-2017 Jupiter is located in the constellation of the same name. This is a major astrological event of the year. Astro-Geometric Forecasts Jupiter is the planet that has the strongest influence over human behavior. This influence makes it a good indicator of the future behavior of humans, and we can understand the coming years by observing Jupiter. These forecasts are highly accurate and widely used for a variety of reasons, including: For a short period of time: one can use Jupiter as a predictive tool for the next month. In reality, the influence of Jupiter on the human is such that the monthly forecast is not reliable. However, for a short period of time, a forecast of Jupiter can be very valuable, and Jupiter gives us the following information: At the beginning of this month, Jupiter has a retrograde motion. This means that for the rest of the month, Jupiter's influence on the human is retrograde. This means that the human is experiencing emotions that occur after the planets move through the zodiacal signs. The events happening around Jupiter in this month will affect the human. The events that take place around Jupiter in the month are of such a magnitude that people would not expect to see them in a monthly forecast. For the whole year: one can use Jupiter to predict the year ahead. Jupiter was a very powerful planet throughout the year, with the exception of December, when its influence on the human was retrograde. Jupiter's influence on the human in December is very strong. Jupiter's annual retrograde motion: At the beginning of 2016, Jupiter's orbit around the sun was in a retrograde motion, which lasted until October 21 82157476af
